Conclusion

The analysis of customer transactions reveals strong and consistent performance across all countries, with each market positively contributing to overall transaction growth. Senior customers generate the highest revenue, followed by Adults, showing that older age segments are the key revenue drivers. Youth customers contribute significantly less, indicating lower spending levels.

Customer value is concentrated among a small group of high-performing individuals, with the top 10 customers generating a substantial portion of overall revenue. This clustering suggests dependable, loyal buyers who contribute consistently to the business's financial strength.

Overall, the data shows a healthy transaction structure, clear revenue patterns by age group, and a strong base of high-value customers.
